

Samira Haghbin

Longman-Minitest 4

Each person starts his or her life as an independent person at around age of 22. This can only happen if the individual has a way to earn some income for a living. Some people start with taking positions in companies, while others go trying to find a way to go into a business for themselves. The way I prefer is in a third group from the two mentioned where I can explain it in three stages.

First of all, taking positions in different companies is not an easy task in my country, Iran. You must have some special features for being accepted in a position. Although there are some low-level jobs work with low wages, but that will not be t enough to earn your livelihood ~~make an easy life~~. Besides, it will also have hard physical work involved with it every day. But even after being a specialist someone might still have its problems finding a good job due to the world economic crisis. Besides, the salaries in such systems never go higher than some predefined rates.

Secondly, going into a business for oneself is not an easy task. It requires having a good financial support and great experience in the competitive turbulent business market. Even after preparing both of the mentioned requirements, some unknown conditions may come up as a result of governmental decisions or other countries' economy. But when you comparing the overall income which would be possible to gain in your own business with monthly salaries of working for others, it is the best choice on the table.

My choice is a business which starts its roots in some private company job positions. This position will not be doing ordinary/usual tasks of its own. Instead it will be accomplishing one's given tasks plus having a greater view of how a company earns great outcome. With Whit an open mind towards seeking how the company handles its problems in the market, one can easily start one's its own business and become successful in it. Gathering such information may not be easy at first, but within small businesses, information cannot be withheld for ever. After reaching such an experience in a small company, you would start your own small company, you could also continue to your past job as a part-time job which could help you in links and connections with other companies in the future.

Having everything said and done, the best way for earning money is starting your own business. This may not be reached easily and requires some support to get the financial and experimental requirements by taking a position in small companies. But not for ever. After gathering all the necessary information and experience, one can start his own business and be successful in it.